A DIRECTORY OF VIRGINIA'S STATE, CITY AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

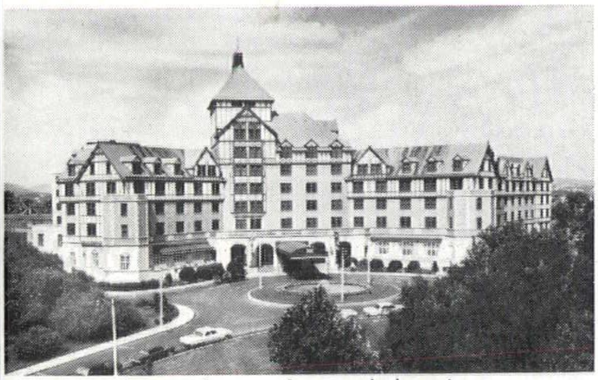

Take our peanut soup, for instance.

That's one reason to visit the Hotel Roanoke. Or the old silver, fresh flowers and sparkling crystal chandeliers in our dining rooms. Or the thick carpets and fine wood-panelling all over the hotel. Or the Pickwick Club for a pleasant get-together. Or our handsome guest rooms—425 of them, many with lovely views of Roanoke and the beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Or our convention facilities—over 15,000 square feet of exhibit space, for instance.

Lots of good reasons, you see, why people enjoy the Roanoke—one of the great houses of the South. I know. I'm the doorman, and I've seen them come and go and come back again. To the Roanoke . . . with 85 years of service to travelers.

(Incidentally, if you'd like to try making that peanut soup yourself, write our Chef Brown for the recipe.)

"To Whom It May Concern"

TO ANY THOUGHTFUL OBSERVER, it has become obvious that governments at all levels devote their attention primarily to finding remedies for the side-effects f programs of progress, technological and sociological. It is a time of frantic eforts merely to relieve symptoms of today caused by yesterday's cures of other ymptoms. There is little to no thought given to the basic maladies that will proluce new symptoms of breakdown tomorrow.

In Virginia, as in the rest of the nation, this has been most apparent in the pproaches to what is called the "problem" of the cities. Virginia's state governnent and local governments have been no different from the national government n seeking salves for the sores rather than diagnosing the disease.

As all informed, non-political observers of the urban "plight" have pointed out, here are two fundamental causes of the symptoms. In the first, Virginia reflects he nation in its lag in adapting to the reality that its society has shifted away rom its rural base without becoming an urban population. In 1965, the nation's ural population had shrunk from 30,000,000 people to 12,000,000; at the same ime the cities, whose population grew to 60,000,000, proportionately dropped to elow 30 per cent in relation to the rest of the population. The true gainers in the hift were the suburbs.

Unrelated to the earlier rural base, the suburbs grew in competition with the rban centers on which they were parasites and at whose expense the suburban rowth depended. It is a commonplace in discussions of the cities' problems to ccept the movement of the better fixed families to the suburbs and the movenent of dislocated Negroes into the cities. Yet, the problems confronted are the urrently existing blighted areas in the cities.

Richmond, for example, has applied for a Federal grant of $363,880 (!) with hich to recreate out of five slum sections model neighborhoods in the model ities programs. By the time whatever kind of "model" neighborhoods can be reated at approximately $73,000 a neighborhood, conditions will be improved for segment of the population who contribute a minescule amount to the taxurdens while X number of new slum neighborhoods will then need attention. Vhen more applications are made to the Federal government, income taxes will nevitably rise for Richmond residents who are already paying in local taxes the ighest true tax rate in the state—$1.59, as compared to Chesterfield's 90 cents nd Henrico's 84 cents.

When this forces individual families to give up the struggle to live in the urban enter, the vacant houses left by them, will be occupied by a swelling population f families who either earn under $3,000 a year or are unemployed and go on the elfare rolls. Along with this population shift, new parking lots to serve new exressways from the suburbs will continue the process of eroding the physical atractiveness of the city and give the die-hard urbanites less reason to populate an rban center that is becoming an automobile terminal surrounded by a dislocated opulation of Negroes and low-earning whites.

Yet, with this shift apparent and, unless checked, inevitable, Richmond—as

o Whom It May Concern

her Virginia cities and cities through-it the nation—has been regarded by ie state government as an isolated ienomenon, whose city officials must ek help from the Federal government. t the same time the bounty of the ederal government is beginning to be en as the second cause of the funda-ental urban problem.

From all over the country, both poli-cians and urbanologists, such as Dan-l P. Moynihan, have pointed out not ily the failure of the Federal pro-ams of subsidy but the basic un-undness of the principle of individual ties being controlled in their financial eeds by central bureaucratic agencies Washington.

Richmond's new city manager, Alan Kiepper, stated that the city's fi-ncial problems can not be met by too eat a reliance on Federal funds nor upping property taxes. Councilmen hil J. Bagley, Jr., and James C. heat, Jr., proposed a resolution call-g on the state to assume the city's elfare burdens, and Norfolk's City ouncil went on record in favor of the me proposition. As Councilman heat pointed out, Richmond's welfare sponsibilities "really come from per-ns migrating to the city from other rts of the state . . ."

While this suggestion is, in itself, cer-inly sensible, it is another superficial medy for the immediate present, and citly accepts the continued existence a growing segment of the city's pop-ation as permanently on welfare. owever, it does point to the state as timately responsible for the condi-ons of the cities, whose plight has en caused by circumstances not aris-g from within the cities themselves. assume these responsibilities, it de-lves upon the state government to nfront the realities of the funda-ental causes of the urban sickness, as reflects the shifts in population bal-ce and Washington's centralized fi-ncial manipulation.

About the questionable role of the ederal government in subsidizing the ties' needs, according to the lights and litical interests in Washington, there nothing Virginia's government can directly. It can, however, as Virginia d in the past, exert influence on the tional scene by progressive, forward-oking measures to remodel the gov-ning structure of the society accord-g to the conditions which, existing day, clearly point to continuous fu-re change in the same direction.

The Hahn Commission Report has made recommendations for change in the obsolete structure, but these recom-mendations ultimately depend on the will and desire of the General Assembly and the Administration to introduce fundamental change. Three of the basic recommendations are in the realm of essentially "planning" agencies, whose effectiveness would be dependent upon the calibre of the planners selected, upon the nature of their support from the political alignments controlling the state government at any time, and—among the intangibles—the cooperation received from the local sub-govern-ments. Judging from the separate and conflicting purposes and interests which now characterize the local sub-divi-sions, cooperation based upon far-sighted, enlightened self-interest would seem to belong in fantasy. The Report's practical recommendation—of expand-ing the role of planning districts into service districts—definitely offered one method of approaching the existing problems in terms of future develop-ments. This recommendation at the least recognized and confronted the clear and present dangers.

But even this outline for innovation suggested techniques of "annexation" within the existing structure. It gives validity to the urban core versus urban-ized county conflict. In the problems manifestly at hand today, which will become acute tomorrow, the whole "annexation" issue is essentially absurd, a product of 18th Century self-govern-ing political units. In this time, outside the definitely rural counties (without major cities), there is no practical di-vision between the urban center and the urban-oriented areas that expand from and are interdependent with the urban center. Without looking for ob-scure City Limits signs, no one could possibly discover where the urban cen-ter—as of Richmond—ends and the "counties" begin. It should not be a question of annexation at all. It is a matter of creating a metropolitan unit which can be efficiently governed and operated with a single purpose — to develop a modern community in which all its citizens and the whole state could take pride. Atlanta did this, and more recently Nashville, while our state government has continued with constitutional laws that belong to a vanished age.

Virginia is not unique in having its General Assembly dominated by rural and/or county based politics — which under today's conditions, with the cities carrying the state's tax-burdens and the bulk of its population and wealth, is the tail wagging the dog. But old politics die hard and Virginia has a deep tradition of rural attitudes imposing upon the whole. This is historically illustrated in the long controversy over alcoholic controls, which fundamentally opposed the rural population to the urban populations.

Today the surface issue is liquor sold by the drink in public eating places (as is the custom in the rest of the civilize world). But the opponents of th movement to restore Virginia cities an resorts to their former competitive po sitions really are prohibitionists who, they had their way, would abolish th sale of alcoholic beverages in any form Now, they add to their argumen against the sale of drinks with mea the dangers of drunken driving on th highways. Though this is indeed a te rible danger, it is a dubious argumer that a cocktail before dinner will mak for more and worse drunken drivin than a fifth of whiskey consumed a home. But drunken driving is simply new argument to buttress an old pos tion. The anti-liquor movement bega in Virginia in 1826!

For nearly a century, the anti-liquo movement made little headway. The the so-called Anti-Saloon Leagu founded in 1895, moved into a poo then backward Virginia in 1901. Un der the specific issue of removing th rner saloon, the League was in fact voted to prohibition. Between 1907 d 1909 the League achieved prohibition in such rural states as Alabama, ississippi, Oklahoma, North Carolina d Tennessee. In Virginia, where the artin machine was largely supported alcoholic interests, a brief coalition as made between the political machine and the dry zealots before Mar's machine capitulated to the politilly potent Anti Saloon League.

Before prohibition led Virginia into e ranks of which such states as Oklama, Alabama and Mississippi formed e vanguard, local option clearly owed the prohibition drift to be nong the rural population. Eighty-six unties voted to prohibit the saloon, d more than 1,000 saloons were osed as their number dropped from 95 in 1900 to 742 in 1909. On local tions the cities continued much as fore. Then, on the vote on statede prohibition, Richmond and Nork, among other cities, going against prohibition, were over-ruled by the majority vote in the counties.

But that was another age. Today the cities have the majority. Yet, such is the tradition of rural-prohibitionist influence, that the cities are denied the local option which the counties had when they wanted it—even though at this time the Virginia Association of Counties has approved a resolution providing for local option.

Last summer Lieutenant Governor Pollard predicted that the 1968 General Assembly would authorize local option referendums, and this suggests the possibility that the legislators might on this specific issue defy the bogey of anti-urbanism. While it is an isolated issue, the authorization of local options would be a step in the direction of a new attitude which accepted the reality that "what is good for the cities, is good for Virginia." As it is now, while everybody talks about the deterioration of the urban centers (and on this point statistics are trustworthy), the State government permits the ridiculous spectacle of the Henrico Wall.

Any change advocated by the Hahn Commission is going to be opposed by segments of narrow self-interest and intolerance. The nature of this intolerance was borne out to me after an article appeared here advocating liquor by the drink. I received a personal letter which informed me that after I grew older and "finished sewing wild oats" I would repentantly perceive the evils of strong drink. In the article, I had stressed the point that in having a guest for dinner my wife had served herself a glass of plain iced soda with bitters, I had drunk coffee, and our guest had brought in a can of beer purchased at a nearby grocery. I do not see how I could have made it clearer that my wife and I do not drink alcoholic beverages; and, with some nostalgia, I look back across decades to the "years of wine and roses." What impressed me was that the letter-writer could not conceive that I would advocate a program except for personal self-interest.

If this sort of intolerance is abroad in the state, we would do well to activate the spirit of our traditions and bring about a re-birth of Jeffersonian tolerance. And we could go further back to Governor Spotswood, who governed the Virginia Colony during its emergence into "the golden age," and apply some "enlightened self-interest" for the good of the whole state of Virginia. That Scottish newcomer locked horns with anybody who opposed his remodeling of governmental procedures in the interests of efficiency and realism.

In contrast today we suffer the humiliation of reading casual references to the earlier Virginia as "in those days a prestigious state." Although we can never be as large as we were at the formation of the Republic, our leade in government could certainly emula those aspects of the past leaders w looked at the fundamental factors i volved and planned for the future.

If the Revolutionary generation h devoted themselves to makeshift re edies of symptoms of basic ills, th would still be tacking amendments the Stamp Act and forming comm sions to submit reports on the violen in Boston's harbor. As things turn out, it might be better if they had. B they acted to introduce a profou change.

Unless every scholarly, thought observer of the present state of t nation is deranged, we are in times— which the urban decay is a sympton which also demand profound chang in attitudes and governmental stru ure. The General Assembly can ma it possible for our cities to join A lanta and Nashville as progressive ce ters below the Potomac, but only state government can do it. The o alternative is to continue playi "catch-up" football, which is a p scription for losing.

The Hahn Commission Report, w all the hosannahs with which it was ceived, is only a recommendation t must be acted upon—with vision, co age, efficiency and determination— the state government, without any lusions about the "cooperation" t will spring into being by the creation planning agencies.
